Editor: v. 1— J. A. Pike, H. G. Fischer, J. W. Willis and June A. Pike.
The first of the bound volumes of the service is a report of the federal procedure in its first year under the new rules. The cases reported herein were decided between the effective date of the new rules and August 15, 1939. The cases and other material, which become available after that date, will appear in the current loose-leaf volume. From year to year, as the material accumulates, permanent volumes will be substituted for the loose-leaf pages. cf. Foreword.

Federated Canadian mining institute.

Organized 1880 (under the name of Canadian mining institute) by the union of the General mining association of the province of Quebec (founded 1881) the Mining society of Nova Scotia (founded 1882) and the Ontario mining institute (founded 1883) which were joined in 1887 by the British Columbia association of mining engineers. In 1897 the name was changed to Federated Canadian mining institute. At the close of 1900 this federation was dissolved, and a new Canadian mining institute was incorporated in its stead. The provincial associations ceased to exist, with the exception of the Mining society of Nova Scotia.

The later Canadian mining institute (incorporated 1899) changed its name in 1920 to Canadian institute of mining and metallurgy.
